NO. 40.

JUSTICE.

There was a man named Ferguson,
He lived on Market street.
He had a speckled Thomas cat
That couldn't well be beat;

He'd catch more rats and mice and such,
Than forty cats could eat.

This cat would come into the room
And climb upon a chair,
And there he'd sit and lick his self
And purr so awful queer

That Ferguson would yell at him—
But still he'd purr severe.

And then he'd climb the moonlit fence,
And sit around and yowl,

And spit and claw another cat
At the side of the jewel,

And then they both would shake their tails
And jump around and howl.

Oh, this here cat of Ferguson's
Was fearful then to see;

He'd purr precisely like he was

In a swine sty;

You'd think a fireless stove aches

Had struck some wretched baby.

And all the mothers in the street,
Walk'd by the hard way,

Would rise right up and scratch their babies

To find who was purring p'r;

And soon this vigorous cat would keep

A hole in like sin.

And so for Mr. Ferguson,

Two more than he could bear,

And so he buried his last Jack cat,

Right through the midnight air,

But this voracious thievish cat

Not one cent did he care.

For still he yowled and kept his fur

A strutting up and down

And his old spine stood up

As far as it would bend.

As if his hope of happiness

Did on his lungs depend.

But while a curv'd of his spine,

And with'd to attack

A cat upon the other fence,

There came an awful crack;

And this here speckled Thomas cat

Was busted in the back.

When Ferguson came down next day,

There lay his old feline,

And not a life was left in him.

Although he had had nine,

All this here comes said Ferguson,

Of curvin' of his spine?

Now all you men whose tender hearts

This painful leaden rock,

Just take this moral to yourselves,

As if you white and black;

Don't you ever go like this here cat,

To gentle you back.

—We've tried Wheat.

Andrew Campbell, a well known farmer residing near the Bush Grounds, has introduced our table a sample of wheat he calls "wheat proof." He brought it from Ohio, and after an experiment of eight years is satisfied it is perfectly against the weevils.

There is nothing peculiar about it but the fact that the double cap inclosing the grain is apparently thicker than in ordinary wheat, and in the early formation seems to inclose it more securely. The weevils attack, more or less, all the wheat in neighborhood, but Mr. Campbell finds not a grain of it in his fields—Let us see the Col. and Peeler. In pursuance of a resolution adopted by a convention of delegates from the Board of Trade held Aug.

4 and 5, at Boston, Mass., the President of that body issued a call for a convention of the colored men of the nation to be held January 13, 1869, at Washington, D. C. The president of colored men of colored race no from the executive of the executive franchise in so many states of the Union, will be the principal object of consideration, and the colored people are invited to express their opinion, by personal appeal, by protest, and by what voices they have unit justice be done. The colored people are now deprived, will necessarily be restored.

—A Boston baker has invented a new kind of yeast. It makes bread so light that a pound of it only weighs ten ounces.

JUSTICE.

If the popular belief in the purity of our republican form of government be well founded, there should be no need for elaborate arguments in favor of Free-Trade.

The simple question of JUSTICE being decided, must forever set at rest all civil, for the sake of the advocates of protection will know no end even of the advocates of pro-tection's purpose to do that which is palpably

UNJUST in order to do that which is purely innocent.

—Nothing is more common than to hear people talk of what they pay newspapers for advertising, etc., so much given in charity. Newspapers, by enhancing the value of property in their neighborhoods, and giving the facilities in which they are published a reputation abroad, benefit to themselves. Let us view any exchange such particularly if they are in repute as commodities in this light, and the most strong injustice of legislative interference in the money sum which they paid for their transaction will at once become apparent.

Besides, every public spirited citi-
